Story of the Opera

Count Di Luna had two sons. The younger was supposed to have been bewitched by a gypsy woman, who was therefor burned alive. Azucena, the latter's daughter, swore vengeance. She succeeded in kidnapping the younger son of the old Count, because of her mother's fate. With him she repaired to the stake at which her mother's ashes were still to be seen. By mistake Azucena threw her own babe into the flames instead of the stolen child. She fled to her tribe, bearing the boy with her. He grew to superb manhood, and was known as Manrico the Troubadour. In the meantime the Count had died. His older son succeeded to the title. The new Count was in love with Duchess Leonora.

ACT I.—Manrico, disguised, has been crowned victor on a tourney by the Duchess Leonora. A love results, shared by both. One night the Count, while in the Royal Gardens, is surprised by the voice of the troubadour. Leonora, attracted by the song, has come from her palace. Mistaking the Count for his unknown brother, she hastens to him. Manrico has seen and is jealous. He and the Count duel. Manrico is not injured. He joins the army and leaves for the wars, is found on the battlefield by Azucena. She removes him to her mountain home and there restores him to health.

ACTS II. and III.—He learns that Duchess Leonora, believing him dead, is about to enter a convent. He sets out and overtakes Leonora just in time, conducting her to Castellor, which is at once besieged by Di Luna. The troubadour is preparing for his marriage when he suddenly learns that a gypsy (his supposed mother) is to be burned alive, having been taken by the enemy as a spy. Hastening to rescue her he is repulsed and taken prisoner. On the eve before the day set for the execution of mother and son, Leonora suddenly appears before Di Luna, offering her hand in marriage in exchange for the life of Manrico. The Count agrees.

ACT IV.—Leonora is permitted to enter the prison to release Manrico. On her way, however, she takes poison. Manrico, who doubts Leonora, now sees her faithfulness. Di Luna enters, takes in the situation at a glance, and orders that Manrico be killed. During the execution the Count drags Azucena to the window that she may behold the fate of her son. She then exposes her secret, and cries, "Manrico is thy brother. Mother, thou art avenged."

RECORDED IN MARICOPA COUNTY

BY G. G. Gase
County School
Superintendent

I appreciate the honor given me this afternoon to speak for
MABEL HANCOCK LATHAM

It is my honor to introduce ~~XXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXX~~
~~this afternoon~~ one of our native daughters and my dear friend
Mabel Hancock Latham.

Mrs. Latham's father Captain William Augustus Hancock was a colorful individual who first came west in 1853, when he crossed the plains with livestock, lured by tales of gold in California. Among other things he raised horses near Sacramento. Before long he returned to his home in Massachusetts by way of the Isthmus of Panama. ^{In Panama City} ~~While there~~, Mrs. Latham says, he purchased a lovely cameo, ^{set} made of lava from Mt. Vesuvius. This was treasured by his sister. He also used some of his gold to buy a dozen coin silver forks for her when she married.

William A. Hancock again felt the call of California and started west, this time by ship with a spirited horse that, unfortunately, was seasick most of the way. Mrs. Latham says that her father spent much of the time in the hold with his beautiful Black Prince. Black Prince was used on the cattle ranch in California. One day the spirited animal reared with Mr. Hancock ~~and~~ fell and broke ^{it} his neck. Mr. Hancock jumped free and was uninjured.

Miss Lillie Belle Kellog, who was later to marry William A., came west in a covered wagon when she was a year old from Crown Point, Indiana. Her parents joined the hundreds of gold seekers who crossed the plains. ~~As a~~ child, Lillie Belle lived in most of the counties of northern California, where there was some trouble with the Indians.

In the fall of 1871 the Kellogs decided to come to the Salt River Valley. Lillie Belle rode horseback all the way from Monterrey. They had a pleasant home on the Tempe Road, now Van Buren, near where 16th St. ~~now~~ is.

Lt. William A. Hancock came to Arizona with the California Column and joined Company C of the 1st Arizona Volunteers September 1, 1865. He was breveted a captain and was stationed at Ft. McDowell where he was mustered out September 13, 1866. Captain Hancock had fallen in love with our valley and ^{actively} identified himself with its progress.

He surveyed and named the streets of Phoenix in 1870. Those running east and west bore the names of the presidents of the United States, and those north and south of the various Indian tribes. Later these names were changed to the present numerical system He built the first business building on the corner of 1st and ~~Washington~~. It was used as a ^{gen.} store.

The Captain was always busy and doing something to help the valley. He was the first postmaster in Phoenix, being appointed in 1870. He held various county offices. He was the first sheriff. In 1871 he was district attorney and later judge of the probate court.

Captain William A. Hancock early appreciated the importance of irrigation and surveyed the routes of the Grand and Arizona Canals on the north side and the Utah and Mesa Canals on the south side of the river. He also surveyed the streets of Mesa.

The Captain and Lillie Belle Kellog were married in the year ^{at 33} 1872 and established themselves in a well built adobe house on Cortez Street, just east of the court house. The walls were eighteen inches thick. The glass in the windows was the first in the valley and had come up from Maricopa Wells by ^{oylem} ~~Leam~~. The yard was attractive with trees and grass. Mrs. Latham remembers a lovely climbing ^{The Baltimore Belle} rose that each spring had beautiful pale pink blossoms. Of course there was a corral for the horses. Here Mabel Hancock was born December 1, 1875.

She started to school in the old central school, a two story brick where the San Carlos Hotel now stands. She was eight years old and in the second grade. She already knew how to read. She went through the Phoenix schools and had a year at the old Los Angeles Normal. She returned and took the teachers examination and began teaching in a two room school in Glendale. My mother, Grace Perley, had the upper grades and Mrs. Latham the lower. Before this my Aunt Polly had taught in Glendale and Mrs. Latham used to visit her. That was when she decided to teach. ~~Mrs. Latham used to visit her. That was when she decided to be a teacher.~~ Mrs. Latham later taught in the West End school in Phoenix and later in the Central School.

She renewed her teaching certificate at the old Tempe Normal School, in ^{A life certificate was given her in Jan 1914} ~~1914~~ and taught in Monroe school and in the Kenilworth when it was new. Some of her pupils were:

- Mrs. Dwight
- Berry Caldwell
- Wilbur Asbury - Captal ice
- Wm Sanbly - ~~manager~~
- Dysart twins
- Weldon Jones of Valley National Bank
- Susan Margaret Jenks
- JL Renty
- Paul + Lawrence Hoagland

Mrs. Latham's brother, Harry Hancock lived in the valley all ^{his} this life and has been interested in various irrigation projects. For many years he held the important position of water commissioner. ^{He was instrumental in draining the alkali lands around Buckeye} ~~was~~ ^{William A} Captain Hancock ~~must have been~~ brilliant and a natural scholar, ~~was~~ in spite of the fact that his formal education was rather brief, he taught himself to be an excellent civil engineer and later he was a lawyer and judge. He always loved books.

He and my grandfather, Peleg Stone Perley were law partners upstairs in the old Thibado Building where the Saratoga Cafe now stands. This association was important to Mabel Hancock and Polly Perley who were dear friends in the days before telephones and so sent ~~xxx~~ daily messages to each other via the pockets of their fathers.

Mrs. Latham's reminiscences of the early days are delightful. I am glad to say she is putting some of them on paper and giving the manuscripts to the college library so that this information will be available to students.

Mrs. Latham, what are some of the highlights of those early days in Phoenix:
